On-Site Residential College Public Health Coordinator (PHC)

Overview of Role: Yale College is seeking graduate and professional students to live in residential colleges to take on the role of a public health coordinator (PHC). The PHCs provide on-site crisis intervention and emergency management for Yale College students, with remote support as necessary from professional staff. The PHCs will report to a Yale Mental Health and Counseling professional and to a member of Yale College Student Affairs. Each PHC will be provided with a single room in one of the 14 residential colleges or Old Campus and receive dining hall privileges in their assigned college for the standard academic-year meal plan. Each PHC will participate in an on-call schedule to collectively cover the residential colleges 24/7 when the undergraduates are in residence. We anticipate a start date of August 3 for training and a move-out date of mid-June 2021. The PHCs must sign, model and abide by the Yale Community Compact.

Essential Duties:
- Live in the assigned residential college or Old Campus.
- Collaborate closely with heads and deans of colleges, first-year counselors (FroCos), peer liaisons, deans of cultural centers, student affairs staff, Yale Health, SHARE and other offices.
- Respond in-person with professionalism, empathy and decisiveness to student emergencies and critical incidents related to the health and safety of students, with remote support as needed from the residential college, student affairs, and YMH&C.
- Provide on-duty coverage to students in one or more residential college.
- Train in the use of PPE for in-person interactions with students, including those who may be in self-quarantine or self-isolation.
- Participate in staff training and regular staff meetings.
- Be aware of different students’ needs and demonstrate a strong commitment to inclusive behaviors and respect for students, staff and faculty.
- Provide documentation of emergencies and crises.
- Sign, model and abide by the Yale Community Compact

Education, Skills, Experience:
- Current Yale University graduate or professional school student.
- Residential leadership experience is preferred.
- Demonstrated ability to handle stressful, challenging and emotionally-charged situations, and create thoughtful, fair and institutionally-aligned responses.
- Demonstrated ability to engage in collaborative relationships with professionals and students.
- Excellent interpersonal skills and the ability to respectfully work with a diverse group of people.

Compensation: PHCs are current graduate or professional school students who are provided with a single in one of the residential colleges or Old Campus. The PHC will be provided with a standard academic year meal plan in their assigned college. In addition, a stipend of $2600 per semester will be provided. Should the college go to a completely remote mode the PHC will maintain access to their room through the end of the of the specified period, if guidelines so allow, but no other compensation will then be provided.
